I AM WRITING THIS FOR YOU

When someone takes a picture of me and says, "Smile." I think of you folks out there in newsletter land. When someone takes a picture of the group at Great Banquet # _____, (and you can put your own number in here), I think of you who sat at that Great Banquet. The camera is a bag that holds our memories.

I have watched some of you people do great things, and you didn't even know you were doing great things. You did those great things without any promise of reward or recognition, and so they are truly great, secret things. It was beautiful.

So, my friends, just as a reminder~ you are not here to impress others, or to be better than others. You are not here to put others in their place, or to fix others. You were put here to be with others, and to be for others.

Every day the world will grab us by the hand and yell at us, "This is important!!!!!!" "You need to pay attention!!!!!!" "This and this and this!!!!!!" And each day you need to evaluate and most of the time say, "No. This is not important."

Home is a time ~ and not just a place. So pay attention to time. When you finally understand what it means to be at home, in that moment of time you will nod your head and sigh from the back of your throat.

In this life, and place, and time, be at home with others. Everyone is a lesson in life and a story. So listen. Never speak if you have an opportunity to listen. There is nothing you can say that will endear yourself to someone more than truly listening. You will meet some strange and some wonderful people along the way. In this life ~ enjoy your stay.

If you never had a bad day, how would you recognize the good ones?

Here is a simple truth about people. Love the ones you want to keep. Remember who you are in moments that matter, and in the moments that don't seem to matter, also remember who you are. Either everything has meaning or nothing has meaning and that includes you.

When I go to the hospital to visit someone, they most often have a window in their room. I always ponder their view from the hospital. It helps me put myself in their place.

Each of us is a record of things that have happened to us and we have done. The scars we carry are the documentation of mistakes and sins we have committed or that have been committed against us. Each of us are the compilation of things I have done to myself, and the things done to me. That is the history of you and me.

THE FUTURE IS THE PAST WAITING TO HAPPEN.

Just some thoughts for you. . . . Jack
